

NEW MEXICO TERRITORIAL FAIR.

By Harry Ellard.

There are places of attraction that are advertised around. Each proclaiming its locality the best that can be found. With its air so health-reviving, with its waters clear and pure, That all existing ailments can find a proper cure.

There's the circus in the summer and the opera when its cold, And all the plays upon the stage to suit the young and old, There's the lecture in the evening, and the ever playing band, That discourses charming music as it travels o'er the land.

We give to each its credit for the amusement they afford, But in coming to conclusions each will say with one accord, That the time and place to visit, entertaining one and all, Will be in Albuquerque, at the Fair we have this fall.

We will show that Albuquerque is a place of great renown, For its enterprise and progress it surpasses any town, Our business is increasing in all branches large and small, You will see in Albuquerque at the fair we have this fall.

Our cattle and our horses are the purest stock on hand And our gardens are unequalled by any in the land; We will show our territory is a place of great repute That its soil is most productive in the finest kind of fruit.

To all the population invitations we extend, We will give to you a welcome and treat you as a friend, You'll never forget your visit, so we ask you one and all To come to Albuquerque and the Fair we have this fall.

The First Day.

The twenty-second annual territorial fair opened in this city this morning, and will continue till Saturday evening.

The exhibition is the very best ever held in the southwest.

The main hall is filled with choice exhibits from nearly every county in the territory.

The weather is perfect and the grounds and race track is excellent.

The attendance already is far above the first day of any previous territorial fair, and the indications are that there will be double the crowds of last year.

In the line of races and amusements every minute from now till the close will be crowded with events. There are more than twice as many good horses on the grounds than at any previous fair in New Mexico.

The base ball players are the best to be found in the United States and the contest between the El Paso and Albuquerque league teams will be a fight to a finish for the money.

The people of the city are doing everything in their power to please and entertain visitors, and all who are here commend the arrangements made for the entertainment of the big crowds of visitors.

Arrival of Gov. Otero.

Many salutes fired late last night announced the arrival of Gov. M. A. Otero from Santa Fe. The governor had expected to arrive on an early train, and it was with some regret when the immense crowd learned that he would not arrive until the late train.

He was met at the train by Colonel Bordeale and his staff, officers of the Fortieth cavalry, territorial fair executive committee, Mayor Myers and many prominent citizens.

In the evening the streets thronged with eager crowds, the brilliant illuminations, the bands playing inspiring music gave the city all the appearance of a municipality and it made a most desirable impression on the governor, as it did the others, who were a part of the crowd.

Judge Baker's Address.

Promptly at 1 o'clock this afternoon, on a platform for the occasion and erected at the corner of Railroad avenue and First street, the big fair was formally opened by Governor Otero introducing Judge B. S. Baker, associate justice of the territorial supreme court and judge of the Second judicial district.

Judge Baker said in part as follows:

This is an industrial age. The throbbing of the great heart of commerce has filled every artery and vein of the business world almost to congestion. Never before has the medium of exchange been tapped to the very verge of collapse by the volume of business, its beneficial effects are enjoyed in our midst. We are proud to be citizens of a nation that has an industrial development that so amply supports its eighty millions of people. Nor are we on the crescent of the wave, reaching as we are into the markets of the world. We are destined to be the head center of the commerce of all nations.

Our people, their education, their morality, their energy and their courage make us the greatest nation that ever existed.

Today we open our carnival, which is a beautiful picture of the resources and industries of our people. Our carnival would be a credit to any state in the Union. Surely "the star of empire" takes its way."

Fellow citizens I am proud to proclaim the opening of the twenty-second annual fair of the territory of New Mexico. Its exhibits will be pleasing and its festivities enjoyable. Too much credit cannot be given to the promoters of this great enterprise. Visiting friends, we welcome you to our midst, and I am authorized by the management of the territorial fair and the mayor of this city to say that for the week Albuquerque is yours, and may your cup of pleasure be filled to overflowing and be so enjoyable that we may see you often. You are here to see and enjoy the show, and as I am no part of the management of the circus, I will give way for the real thing, again extending to you and all comers a most cordial and hearty welcome to our city, trusting and believing your visit will be mutually very enjoyable.

RAILROAD NOTES.

J. R. Merryfield, auditor of the Santa Fe coast lines, Los Angeles, is in the city.

Switch engine 2313 has been repaired and is at work in the local yards again.

Engine 772 has been transferred from the Santa Fe to the Santa Fe Pacific.

A. C. Stowell has been promoted from fireman to switch engineer and is busy today bumping cars in the local yards.

W. J. Joy, the switchman who was hurt during the fair parade last Thursday, is reported getting along nicely, but still unable to go to work.

J. W. Records, superintendent of motive power of the Albuquerque Eastern and Santa Fe Central railroads, spent Saturday and Sunday with his family here.

George Roe, district passenger and freight agent for the Santa Fe at El Paso, with his son, Harold, was in the city last Saturday, taking in the last day of the big fair.

Dr. J. P. Kaater, chief surgeon of the Santa Fe main line, with home and headquarters at Topeka, has returned north, after a few days' sojourn in the territorial metropolises.

Frank Short, an iron molder employed at the railroad shops at Parsons, Kansas, accidentally shot and killed his cousin, Miss Zella M. Short, while carelessly handling a revolver. Miss Short was visiting relatives, but lived in Missouri.

General Santa Fe Watch Inspector Montgomery, with headquarters at Topeka, was an Albuquerque visitor last week. S. T. Vann & Son were given the entire inspectorship of the Rio Grande division, and T. Y. Maynard has entire control of the inspection of watches on the Santa Fe Pacific.

There seems to be little doubt that the Rock Island extension from Morris to St. Louis will be built. The company has a large corps of surveyors at work east of Mt. Pulaski, twenty-five miles north of Springfield, and will cross the Peoria branch of the Illinois Central southeast of Mt. Pulaski. It also seems probable that the road will run through Springfield.

PURE WATER FOR BOILERS.

Work Commenced on Tanks at Santa Fe Shops.

A force of men has commenced excavating immediately west of the Santa Fe power house for the foundations for two treating tanks of 25,000 gallons capacity each, which will be similar to those used by Edison.

The water used for the boilers in the power house contains a large per centage of foreign matter which forms a scale in the boilers and these tanks are designed to separate this foreign matter from the water before it reaches the interior of the boilers and has the opportunity of forming incrustations. The tanks will be constructed of redwood staves and will each be eight feet in diameter and fifteen feet in height, resting on a framework of heavy timbers much after the fashion of the ordinary modern water tank, the bottom of the tanks being thirteen feet from the ground.

They will supply the feed water for the boilers in the power house and eventually for the boilers in the blacksmith shops.—Topeka State Journal.

Green Consolidated Mining company, on the Arizona-New Mexico boundary line for the purpose of surveying a railroad line from Naco via Bixbee and Clifton into New Mexico to reach the Gallup and Durango coal fields. Col. McFarland, a well known railroad engineer, will have charge of the survey. It is said that there is ample capital ready for the construction of the road, which will be used principally to haul coal to the smelters and mills of the Green Consolidated Mining company.

Rich Man Comes to Grief.

Judge Hamilton, counsel for Fitzgerald Moore, has just returned to El Paso from Las Cruces, N. M., where his client, one of the rich men of the southern part of New Mexico, was given a sentence of sixty days in jail for contempt of court. Moore, who is widely known, has been defendant in two sensational suits lately which cost him the greater portion of his fortune. His second wife obtained a decree of divorce and was awarded half his estate by the courts of El Paso, and his son, Lee Moore, by his first wife, obtained judgment for $60,000 at Las Cruces as his portion of the estate left by his mother. That court enjoined Moore from disposing of New Mexico property, but while the suit was pending he attempted to sell some cattle on one of his ranches and was imprisoned for contempt.

Voluntary Increase.

The Colorado Fuel & Iron company on Wednesday posted notices in most of its New Mexico and Colorado mines announcing an increase in wages for the employees, effective that morning. The number of men affected by the advance is 10,000 and in some cases the increase is 25 per cent. Only the coal mines of the company are affected and it is believed the new plan equalizes the schedules more satisfactorily and the men will receive a fairer return for their day's work. It has been contemplated for some time. There has been no demand from the men for an increase and the action taken is voluntary on the part of the company.

Two Fine Newspapers.

The Albuquerque Citizen and Journal-Democrat have been vying with each other in producing big, live papers during fair week. The Citizen started out Monday with a twenty-page illustrated edition with colored cover pages and containing a big showing of "pay matter" and voluminous matter of a descriptive nature. Both The Citizen and Journal-Democrat have been issuing twenty-page papers each day during the week, and are both magnificent specimens of newspaper enterprise.—Raton Range.

Friend of Raton.

Hon. Tom Hughes, editor of The Albuquerque Citizen, who was one of the delegates from Bernalillo, deserves a large share of the credit for the convention being given to Raton. When the Range proposed this city as the place for holding the convention, Mr. Hughes took the matter up, and not only through his newspaper but personally championed Raton with telling effect.—Raton Range.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Some people are never happy except when hunting trouble. Hon. W. S. Hopewell is chairman of the territorial democratic central committee. Last Saturday night he was made a Mystic Shriner, and in a few days he will be made an Elk.

Will some one tell us what Mr. Ferguson did while he was delegate in congress? It is true that he has made several trips to Washington since he was delegate looking after the location of the military post in this city, but each time it was at the expense of the people of Albuquerque.

At Las Vegas Mr. Ferguson made the claim that he is entitled to the vote of the railroad men of New Mexico. This is fresh news to people. When and how and where did Mr. Ferguson ever do anything for railroad men? He was employed to prosecute the poor fellows who engaged in the big A. R. U. strike.

Photography has entered so largely into railroad that it now often takes the place of a manuscript report. It tells with the greatest fidelity the story of the condition of roadbeds, bridges, building operations, wrecks, etc., and it relieves headquarters of much of the drudgery of wading through lengthy written statements.

Whether New Mexico is admitted as a state, or is not, it will require some special legislation to promote its interests and develop its resources. Which is the most sensible thing to do, says the Las Vegas Record, to send a friend or an enemy of the republican administration at Washington to ask for favors? A vote for Rodey is a vote for New Mexico's progress.

CLEVELAND'S WAIL.

The one distinguished democrat, Grover Cleveland, is once more to the fore with his panacea for all ills—disturbance of the tariff. Mr. Cleveland's previous calamitous monkeying with prosperity, until there was no prosperity left to monkey with, says the Los Angeles Times, apparently taught him nothing. He is as "set in his ways" as the burro on a thousand hills. To him free trade, under another name, will cure warts on man and pig in chickens. To Grover, of whom we had "four more years" mixed with trouble of all sorts, there is nothing to equal the destruction of the country's industries through experiments with the nation's revenues. To the sage of Buzzard's Bay, more recently of Princeton, there is nothing to a nation so dangerous as a surplus in the treasury. To this masterful fisherman, all actual prosperity is merely a seeming so, and even though the country be rolling in wealth it is really in a horrible fix, and doesn't know it. Truly, and indeed, there is but one of the great Grover's kind. He is sui generis. He stands alone in his majesty as a destroyer of industry, a creator of tramps and a mobilizer of Coxey armies. The American people, however, do not forget the gray days when the duck hunter was overflowing the presidential chair, and the policies he may choose to advocate will be fought as shy as bubonic plague and other evils. The soup kitchen has gone to stay, let us fondly hope.

THE GRAND CANYON.

Nature's grandest wonder, the Canyon of the Colorado—that stupendous gash in the world which awes mankind—is about to be mapped from end to end by the government, as was announced in recent dispatches. The figures printed regarding this wonderful chasm and succession of colossal piles of rock are stupendous, and the canyon itself is a scenic marvel worthy any man's journey across the world. Maps and figures will never give one an adequate idea of the great gorge—"It must be seen to be appreciated." Now that the iron horse is snorting near its rim, a view of the abysses and color effects is to be had in entire comfort, and the American, especially, who goes to Europe for views of scenery before he visits the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, is making a serious mistake. The old world has nothing in natural scenic effects that can compare with this vast and silent rift in a vast and silent land.

Strike in Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Members of the wholesale grocers' union went on strike today to compel the wholesale association to live up to a wage contract adopted by the union and the grocers on September 21. There are a thousand men in the grocers' union, and it is expected by night not a man will be working.

W. M. Borrowdale, the Magdalena druggist, is in the city taking in the fair and buying supplies.

Last night, at 10:45 o'clock, an alarm of fire was turned in and the fire department hurriedly responded. The call was for the corner of Second street and Railroad avenue, and when the firemen reached that place they found the stand, used by the Elks for the disposal of confetti, in flames. The decorations were allowed to burn themselves out, and in consequence no water was turned on. It is thought that some mischievous individual, not content on throwing confetti, thought of more lively excitement and applied a match to the decorations.

Will Horalin, general merchant and Indian trader at Thoreau, in business with Richard Wetherill, is here and has enjoyed himself this week.

Prof. F. A. Jones, who is kept busy these days inspecting mines for eastern capitalists, will be a south bound passenger tonight.

W. C. Porterfield, a well known Silver City business gentleman, is in the territorial metropolis.

W. W. Risdon, a popular citizen of Gallup, who attended a meeting of the New Mexico Firemen's association here and also took in the big fair, has returned to Gallup.

Mrs. John Roger Haynes is reported dangerously ill with typhoid fever. Yesterday a consultation of physicians was held on her case.

Joe P. Goodlands, who represents the Myers Drug company, of St. Louis, was here yesterday and took in the Elks parade last night. That tall, handsome figure, with bloomers, and who threw bouquets of sweet words to people, was Joe Goodlander. Don't tell him who gave away his disguise.

Miss Mabel Stone, daughter of Mr
